BELL CRAFT BARGAINING BULLETIN #7

Sisters and Brothers,

Bargaining continued last week with the assistance of federal conciliation officers Rejean Bercier and Michel Bibeault.

For most of the week we worked on Bell's proposals relating to future employees. These discussions have been difficult, as the Union and the Company have very different views on what terms and conditions should apply for those people who will become our future members.

By the end of the week we began to concentrate on the Union's monetary proposals and the parties have agreed that we will continue working on the Union's monetary proposals during the coming week.

We will work diligently on behalf of the members over the next weeks with a goal of reaching a tentative agreement before the current agreement expires on November 30, 2012.
